What Is OnReady?

OnReady is the US-based Godot user conference taking place at the Hilton Boston in Woburn, Massachusetts, United States. There are two planned components, a day of workshops and two days of talks. We plan to have potentially 600 people in attendance, but will get farther reach when we consider the posting of talks and our collaboration with the Godot Foundation.

As the first annual OnReady Godot conference, we will have plenty of opportunities to talk about the conference and it’s sponsors in posts, on Discord, and in newsletters. All talks will be recorded and posted online.

Who Is Running It?

Behind OnReady is the non-profit organization SceneTree. Our mission is to provide open source game development education and communities. After running the first US-Based GodotCon, SceneTree was formed to continue hosting Godot events from the United States.

The Godot Foundation is helping to organize the conference with SceneTree and volunteers from the Boston Godot Usergroup and the backing of Boston Game Dev, a local 501(c)3 charitable organization focused on growing game development.

The entire GodotCon Boston team returns to run OnReady including Joseph Hill, Chad Stewart, and Tom Schultz.
